Wheat Yield Expected Larger Than 1931 Yield

While no definite estimate of Alberta's wheat yield can be made for another fortnight, evidence is still strong that the total harvest will be considerably greater than last year, says the fortnightly crop culture of the department of agriculture.

This condition prevails in spite of rather serious deterioration in some districts, due to effects of the hot spell of some weeks ago during the filling period.

As threshing records arrive at the department, the wide variation in yields is strongly noted in nearly all localities, yields of from 10 to 20 bushels being shown in many districts within a few miles radius.

In this connection the statement is made that no large single area is experiencing a crop failure this season. It is also interesting to recall that the average wheat yield for the province for the past five years, 1928 included, was 19.24 bushels, which is considered a good record.

Although for the most part Alberta has enjoyed almost perfect harvesting weather there are one or two areas where operations have been rather seriously retarded owing to heavy rains.

Cool weather over most of the province set in a week ago and mercury crept below the frostmark in a good many places, but damage thus far is not extensive. Low temperatures have prevailed accompanied by rain.

Harvesting Going Strong.

At the time of going to press it is estimated that 70 per cent of the wheat will be cut. The unsettled weather of last week delayed the harvest somewhat and it is reported that there was some damage from frost in some localities.

The crop will be one of the heaviest harvested in this district. The local elevator men are expecting the grain shipment to be very heavy. They estimate that over a million bushels of wheat will go through the elevators this season and about 350,000 bushels of coarse grain.

Canada After Bacon In Big Way

Canada will go after the high-class bacon trade of the world in a very serious manner, if Great Britain grants the Dominion's request for 3-cents a pound preference on this commodity. Canada is asking that a duty of 3 cents a pound be levied on foreign bacon entering markets of the United Kingdom, with Empire-produced bacon admitted free.

It requires 3-cents a pound to give Canada a net advantage of 2-cents under existing exchange rates, as compared with Denmark. Given such a start, officials of the agricultural department are optimistic that Canada can step out and produce quality bacon that will show the way to the rest of the world. She leads in wheat; gets the best price for chicken, cheese of any outside country selling in the United Kingdom market, and could do as well in bacon, they expect.

Western Coal Will Be Cheaper

Priests of coal and coke will be from 30 cents to $1.00 lower in Winnipeg this winter than last and British and Western Canadian coal will be used almost exclusively. Mr. W. R. Kell, secretary of the Western Canada Fuel Association, said Monday.

Owing to tariffs and the adverse exchange rate, United States domestic and steam coals will be scarcely obtainable. For the first time on record British and Canadian coals will be used almost exclusively. Alberta coal mines increased their sales in Manitoba by about 200,000 tons last year, despite a mild winter and a further increase of 100,000 tons is expected this year. In an average winter the Winnipeg and Manitoba markets require about 1,000,000 tons of coal or coke.

Reductions all along the line will make the lower price possible, despite a slight reduction in the freight subvention given by the Dominion government. Moreover, mine-owners, distributors and retailers are all taking slightly lower returns to produce a saving for consumers.

Bill McFarquhar was a Calgary visitor on Monday.

First Load of Wheat Delivered In Didsbury Goes to Pool Elevator

The honor of delivering the first load of wheat this season goes to Mr. Alex Snyder. The wheat graded No. 2 Northern and is of the Garnet variety. Mr. Snyder started threshing out of the swath on Monday afternoon.

The grain was delivered to the Alberta Wheat Pool elevator on Tuesday morning and weighs 64 lbs to the bushel. Mr. Snyder states that the wheat is threshing out at about 45 bushels to the acre. At the time of going to press he has delivered eight truckloads to the elevator and has about the same quantity in the granary on his farm.

In the afternoon of Tuesday Mr. Nick Swahn brought a load of wheat to the Alberta Pacific elevator. This was also Garnet wheat threshed out of the swath, and graded No. 2. The grain weighed 63 lbs to the bushel, and Mr. Swahn commended on the splendid color and quality of the sample.

On Tuesday morning Mr. E. K. Pratt sent a sample of wheat to the Midland Pacific Elevator for grading. This was also Garnet wheat and graded No. 2, and Mr. Jack Flours stated that he found it to be an excellent sample. Mr. Pratt started to thresh from the swath on Monday evening and continued threshing on Tuesday. The grain is being stored in the elevator on the farm.

Help Our Youth Now.

Within recent weeks daily newspapers throughout the Dominion have printed columns, and sometimes solid pages, of names of young men and women who have graduated from universities and colleges or passed the final examinations of their Normal, technical, collegiate, high school or business college courses. The total number of these young people in Canada runs away up in the thousands every year, and last year and again this year has been no exception.

In the case of the University and college graduates they have, with a few exceptions who will go on with post-graduate work, come to the end of one phase of life. The same is true of the vast majority of those who have completed Normal, technical, collegiate, high school, and business college courses. A certain number of these will go to university, or take up some special course of further training, but, generally speaking, these students have ended the days of their scholastic preparation for life.

In a word, this great army of youth, who in their teens and early twenties have been studying and undergoing training, has completed this first stage in life's journey. They have been preparing for work. They are now ready to go to work, and are eager to begin, bubbling over with enthusiasm and keyed up with energy for the work ahead, and stirred with ideas and ambitions of what they expect and desire to accomplish.

And right at the outset they are met with rebuff, with crushing disappointment. In an overwhelming majority of cases there is no work for them to do, no positions open for them to fill, no opportunities knocking at the door to which they can respond. True, there is the odd case where through family or other influence a place is made available, but by and large, inability to secure work is the experience of this army of today's youth, trained, eager and ready to work. They find themselves in a world which offers them little or no opportunity to use their hard won knowledge and training.

Herein lies the greatest tragedy of present day conditions, herein lies to these young people, but to the future of our country. At the close of one period in their lives, they are confronted with a blank wall; they cannot trace their steps, they cannot go forward. What are they to do except "mark time" for the present, and, while marking time, what is to be effected on their enthusiasms, their energy and initiative, their ambitions—in a word, on their character? They must fill in the time in some fashion. During this trying period of enforced idleness, are they going to develop habits of shiftlessness, slip into evil ways, weaken morally? Is the clear, straight thinking developed in their student days to become twisted, and the strong arguments deeply imbedded in the wisdom and experience of the past which have been instilled in them to be uprooted?

These are questions to be answered not only by present-day youth, but by the more adult generation. The elders of today have survived other depressions, other panics and crises, and they know that the evils of today will be overcome and pass away. They have confidence that there are just as good, even better days ahead, that the future holds just as great opportunities, greater in fact, than the past, and that these opportunities will come to the youth of today as they came to them. But youth, lacking the experience, is not sure of this. It has had its golden visions of immediate activity and usefulness in the world of work dimmed, if not shattered. They are hurt and bewildered. They are not at all sure of the future, and are in a questioning state of mind. They do not know where to turn. Parents and friends are absorbed in their own difficulties, worried and apt to be impatient.

The elders of this generation require to develop an understanding of their children's problem, and present outlook on life, to reveal to them a deep sympathy, and to cultivate a divine patience with them. Parents can, perhaps, do more in these days to make or break the future lives of their children than was possibly the case in other years.

And what is true of the parents is likewise true of those who are the leaders of and responsible for the life and activities of the communities in which they live. Youth must be served, and if active remunerative employment for a time cannot be provided as an outlet for their energies and enthusiasms, then other provision must be made.

Students of the problem confronting youth at present suggest two forms of activity for them in the absence of other employment. One, that in each and every community adequate means and forms of recreation be provided to engage the interest of and provide an outlet for the energies of youth—in all departments of sport, in properly supervised dances, in the organization of orchestras, glee clubs, amateur theatricals, debating societies, in libraries containing books on inventions, explorations, science, etc.

Second, in the arousing and developing of an interest among young people in the welfare of the community in which they live. If remunerative occupation cannot be provided for the youth of the community, give them the opportunity to serve themselves through some form of recreation and to serve others and the community at large until the opportunity to realize their ambitions returns. The elders of the community can develop such programmes—there is always a need, and probably more so now than ever before—and by the application of the enthusiasm and energy of youth they can be carried through. It will keep them out of mischief, and give them something to think about besides their own problems. Instead of becoming narrow, selfish and bitter, such an interest will broaden their outlook and such activities will sweeten their lives. They will discover much to be thankful for, that in many ways they are not so badly off after all; hope will be revived, confidence restored, new, and possibly better conditions aroused.

Suffered A Severe Attack Of Dysentery

Mr. P. L. D. Mould, Vernon, B.C., writes: "Last Summer I suffered from a severe attack of dysentery. I tried nearly everything on the market, without getting any relief, until a friend told me to use Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, which I did, and I got immediate relief. Now I am making it a rule to always keep a bottle of it in my medicine chest. Wild Strawberry is sure relief for dysentery, colic and diarrhoea, but I always see I get the genuine Dr. Fowler's."

Food Prices Decline

Cost of Food Half of What It Was In 1921
Cost of food today over the store counter is considerably less than half what it was in 1921, and has shown a marked decline since 1929, a report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics shows.

The index numbers of the Dominion Bureau of the retail prices of food 11 years ago stood at 141.1; in 1929 it was 101, slightly over the base of 100 in 1926, and in July this year it was 61.4, a drop of 39.6 points in three years.

The index number of clothing, fuel and rents has also declined, and on the whole the change in the cost of living is shown by a drop in the total index from 99.9 in 1929 to 80.8 last month.

Practically every item of food shows reductions, including meats, butter, milk, bread, sugar, coffee and tea. Vinegar is a long standstill, showing little change. It is 7.5 cents per pint in 1929. Today it is 7.5 cents.

WHOLE FAMILY WITH INDIGESTION

A mother of four writes:—"Myself and family of four all seemed to suffer from indigestion, flatulence, and other forms of indigestion. I suffered whatever I ate. But since we have been taking Kruschen for the last three months we can eat anything, and all enjoy our food much better. We never have a trace of acidity or pain now. I think it is wonderful—it has no upsetting results. Whatever we may have to go without, we could not give up Kruschen." (Mrs.) M.K. Kruschen Salts swiftly neutralizes acid, takes all the ferment out of it, and gently expels it from the system. And by stimulating your organs of elimination to perfect regular action, Kruschen will prevent this harmful acid from ever accumulating again. After that you'll be prone to more misery after meals. Kruschen will keep your inside clean and serene. Pure and invigorated blood will be sent coursing to every part of your body. You'll feel wonderfully energetic and well. Healthy and hearty as it is humanly possible to feel.

Revenue From Radio

Receipts From Radio Licenses Exceed One Million Dollars

Receipts from radio receiving licenses this fiscal year already exceed $1,000,000. This means 500,000 owners of sets have taken out licenses. This is said to be about half of those owning sets. It had been planned to prosecute those who did not take out licenses voluntarily but it has been decided to first make a house to house canvass. Commander C. P. Edwards will have charge of organizing this Canada-wide undertaking.

Old Coin Survives Fire

Was Imbedded In Silver Of Others That Melted

A coin 1,133 years old, dated A.D. 709, has been found at Corning, Illinois, among the possessions of Jake Bittner. Mrs. Bittner's father was a coin collector, but when his home burned the coins were melted. The metal was thrown in a trunk. Dug out recently with an eye toward selling the silver metal, the mass revealed one coin imbedded in the silver. Made of copper, it had not melted.

Ames makes small ships and inserts them in quart bottles. He will not reveal his secret of constructing the models in the bottles, but he is able to sell all he can build.

An Important Industry

Demand For Lobsters From Canadian Waters Is Growing

The lovely lobster has climbed to a high place of importance among Canadian industries and offers one of the brightest spots on the Dominion's business horizon, according to a bulletin just released by the Department of Immigration and Colonization of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Both in the United States and Great Britain, demand for lobsters from Canadian waters has been growing and the industry is in a healthy state," the bulletin stated. "Lobsters now are second only to salmon as the most important fishing enterprise in Canada, the salmon industry being centered largely in British Columbia and the lobsters coming chiefly from the Atlantic coast near Halifax, N.S."

The bulletin told of a new record for a single shipment of canned lobsters, which recently was made to Great Britain. The shipment contained 10,000 cases and was valued at $290,000.

Protect the child from the ravages of worms by using Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator. It is a standard remedy, and years of use have enhanced its reputation.

A Token Of Gratitude

German Soldier Pays Tribute To Humanity Of American Doughboy

A little silver coin bracelet to commemorate the humanity of an unknown "doughboy" who saved the life of his enemy was recently deposited in America's war museum at West Point.

August Ullrich, late of the Kaiser's armies, sent the trinket from his death-bed and with it this note:

"Before I will have to depart, I intend to fulfill the promise I gave to a soldier of the American army, who saved my life in 1918."

"I therefore lay in your hands a bracelet made out of old German coins as a sign of appreciation for a nation whose soldiers even in war treated their enemies with great consideration."

Soft corns and warts are ugly, painful and irritating. Remove them quickly and surely with Douglas' Egyptian Liniment.

Only two British women of the 200 women pilots licensed in this country, have been killed while in charge of an aeroplane, states the Royal Aero Club.

Erect Higher Buildings

Permission Granted To Construct Buildings In London To Height Of 100 Feet

An upward advance in the height of buildings permitted to be constructed in London has been allowed by the County Council. Henceforth structures may rise to a height of 100 feet. The previous limit was 80 feet. Risk of fire has been the principal factor in limiting the upward extent of London's buildings, but under present methods of steel construction the risk is considerably lessened. It is doubtful, however, whether the sub-soil would bear structures of skyscraper proportions, though heights of 200 feet are anticipated.

Many infants are infested by worms which cause great suffering, and if not promptly dealt with may cause constitutional weakness difficult to remedy. Miller's Worm Powders will clear the stomach and bowels of worms and will so act upon the system that there will be no recurrence of the trouble. And not only this, but they will repair the injuries to the organs that worms cause and restore them to soundness.

Novel Use For 'Planes

Japanese Army Machines Search For Active Volcano

Japanese army 'planes were put to the novel use of scouting for an active volcano. Reports came to Harbin that an extinct volcano in the Huang range to the west had suddenly become active. Runnings were reported as heard in a place 25 miles away from Harbin. The 'planes failed to locate any evidence of eruption. Russian scientists reported 13 volcanoes in the Hinggan range back in the 13th century.

Dragged Down By Asthma. The man or woman who is continually subject to asthma is unfitted for his or her life's work. Strength departs and energy is taken away until life becomes a dreary existence. And yet this is needless. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has brought a great change to an army of sufferers. It relieves the restricted air tubes and guards against future trouble. Try it.

Using Canadian Ports

Canadian ports are being used by Canadian shippers to a greater extent than possibly ever before, and the routing of the Dominion's grain to the United Kingdom via the all-Canada route is increasing. Formerly United States ports got the bulk of Canadian grain for shipment overseas, but this situation has been changed in the past year.

The Wheat Preference.

To Canada, the concessions with regard to wheat and flour are of outstanding importance. The wheat of high protein content from our western prairies commands the preference of the shrewd buyers of the British flour mills. London has always been the best market for high-grade wheat.

It is not quite clear whether it will be the British miller or the Canadian farmer who will receive the benefit of the tariff preferential when there is a world surplus, but in normal years it seems likely that the Canadian farmer will secure the 3L (threepenny) preference tariff on this commodity. In any case the preferential will result in an increase in the proportion of Canadian wheat used in Great Britain.

—From the Monthly Letter issued by the Royal Bank of Canada.

Cost of Producing Crops.

The prevailing prices of farm products and the possibility of the low prices continuing for some time, compels farmers to give the question of the cost of production their most serious consideration. Not only should an intensive analysis be made of all the items of expense entering into the cost of production, but all necessary steps should be taken immediately to reduce the controllable items to the lowest possible point consistent with efficiency.

This involves: Use of labor to the fullest extent in directly productive operations; the utilization of power, whether horse or tractor, to as nearly as possible its maximum capacity; selection of the minimum amount of the necessary equipment in its proper size; abandonment of unproductive land and the better management of land capable of producing good crops; because the cost of production per unit varies inversely with the yield.

Great economies can be effected by reorganizing the supply of labor and power and by more efficient management of these two controllable factors, on many farms. This is brought out very clearly on page 26 of Bulletin No. 134, "Cost of Producing Farm Crops in the Prairie Provinces," by the Field Husbandry Division of Experimental Farms Station.

The Alberta Pacific Grain Company Ltd.

COMMENCING business in the North-West Territories in 1901—four years prior to the formation of the Province of Alberta—The Alberta Pacific Grain Company, and predecessor Companies, carries in its records a long line of service to the farmers of Alberta.

ALBERTA Grain Company, Limited, under the able management of John I. McFarland, commenced business in 1901. Total production of wheat in Western Canada in that year had reached less than 65,000,000 bushels. Under Mr. McFarland's policy of fair dealing with all farmers, the growth of his Company kept pace with increasing wheat production in the West. In 1912 Alberta Pacific Grain Company, Limited, was brought into being under guidance of Mr. McFarland, and consisted of an amalgamation of Alberta Grain Company and Alberta Pacific Elevator Company, Limited.

THE "A.P." organization continued to grow. Its elevator system and the railway construction crews into the newly cultivated areas of Alberta and extended its operations into Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

WITH the completion of the building of the Panama Canal the "A.P." became a pioneer in the movement of grain to import markets through the Western route. Terminal elevators, having a capacity of 6,250,000 bushels have been acquired by the Company at the Port of Vancouver.

THE "A.P." system has passed through the financial stress of 1907-08; the war and its aftermath; the boom periods and the business upheaval of the past three years—a period of years, many of which have been obscure and filled with business uncertainties. In all its three decades of dealings with thousands of farmers and the handling of hundreds of millions of bushels of grain, the Company has never failed in an obligation to any client. Among its customers to-day are pioneers of Alberta who drew the first bushel of grain they produced in the Province to an "A.P." elevator.

FAIR DEALING with its customers, coupled with competent office and field staffs; efficient physical grain handling equipment and desire and ability to return to the grower the most that can be obtained for his grain, has brought the "A.P." system from its humble beginning in 1901 to its present position in the grain trade of Canada.

THE policies of the "A.P." today are and will continue to be, those of the founder of the "A.P." system.

Radio On Range.

The well-known saying, "Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast," has frequently been construed into "harm charms to soothe the savage beast," which has been found to be literally true.

Hans Terkleson, a rancher of Arizona has applied the saying to advantage with wild steers. It happened this way:

The range steers when brought into the corrals would never settle down to feeding. On three occasions at least they broke loose. One day by accident a ranch hand began to sing "The Cowboy's Lament," that popular but distracting ditty played to death at some of the restaurants in Lethbridge. The effect on the range steers was instantaneous; they quieted down, listening attentively. The singer then encased with "The Prisoner's Song," followed by "The Strawberry Roan." Before the first stanza finished the animals began to howl the mad, and by the time the song was completed they all settled down comfortably for the night.

Mr. Terkleson was so impressed with the effect of the music on the cattle that he brought his radio out of the house and set it up on some boards, diked-in on a Los Angeles station which gives a 24-hour jazz service, and this soothed the savage beasts.

That was the end of the worries of Hans Terkleson. Under the strains of the music the steers became content and ceased being fractious, and no trouble was experienced in getting them into condition for the market. Radio has found another use.

Presents New Thrill-Romance

One of the very newest, and a very good one too, of starring teams in the Movies is being introduced at the Didsbury Opera House tonight (Thursday), where the Paramount "recreation of Dale Collins' novel 'The Sentimentalist'" is being offered as "His Woman." The team is that of Gary Cooper, lanky hero of many heroic westerns and romantic and that fascinating lady who knocks 'em for a loop with her heavenly expression of lips, Claudette Colbert. This attractive team is not the only one that'll stop your heart in its racing tracks, for there's a dimpled little fellow of some nine months, one Richard Spiro, who does some solo captivating all on his own.

Direction is by Edward Sloman, who has given proper consideration to the developing of the plot, with scenes in which spectacle is permitted to harmonize with mood rather than overpower them with sheer mechanical weight.

The story is that of an abandoned girl from a tropical port, strangely attracted and attached to a kind, one and aggressive young man who sees in her only a chance to mother his foundling. The manner in which real love and mutual understanding ultimately dissolves both their pasts and leads them to a happy goal arm-in-arm, but only after the most dramatic adventures, is sure fire as a screen formula.

Henhouse Mathematics.

How Much Must a Hen Lay to Pay For Her Bed & Board?

Under normal conditions it takes 57.2 eggs to pay for the cost of feed for a pullet during the pullet year, from figures supplied by the Dominion Experimental Station at Lemoville, Que. As the figure is arrived at from an average of twelve years' results, it is of more than ordinary interest. The number of eggs required to pay the cost of feed per bird varies of course with prevailing market prices from year to year. During the period of this report it has ranged from as low as 50 eggs in 1922 to a peak of 69 in 1928, while it took 51 to pay the feed cost in 1931. It is also interesting to note that the same cost study shows that an average of 15 eggs is sufficient to pay the cost of feed per bird during the winter months only.

Here and There

Anticipations are that there will be an attendance of 500 florists at the district convention to be held at the Cornwallis Inn, Kenilworth, N.S., June 1 and 2. It is expected that Sir John Bennett, of St. John's, Newfoundland, will address the convention.

Hon. Gordon S. Harrington, premier of Nova Scotia, accompanied by Mrs. Harrington, left Halifax recently for Montreal where they remained S.S. Duchess of Bedford for a short holiday in the Old Country. During his absence, Hon. Percy C. Black will be acting premier of the province.

"It is not too much to say that any improvement in the revenues of the railroads will immediately make itself felt in all channels of trade and that the maintenance of railroad solvency will do more than any other domestic factor to restore strength to the nation's institutions," says an editorial in the Charleston, S. C., Post.

The "career open to merit" in railway service is well illustrated in the case of Charles H. Deha, a railroader for 43 consecutive years, recently promoted president of the Reading Company. In 1885, at the age of 17, Deha began his railroad career as a roadman in the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway, now the Reading Company.

BRIEFLY TOLD

The will of the late King C. Gillette, safety razor manufacturer, naming his widow as the sole beneficiary was probated at Los Angeles. Attorneys said the estate would be in excess of $1,000,000.

Two thousand five hundred dollars for an individual prize for the best sample of wheat shown at the World's Grain Exhibition next year at Regina, is the largest of its kind ever offered.

Final payment to farmers for all wheat pooled during the 1931-32 season has been made by the Alberta wheat pool, it was announced by R. D. Purdy, general manager. Total payment amounted approximately to $200,000.

There are 5,951,411 single persons in Canada and 3,971,198 married, it is revealed in census figures on conjugal conditions released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Of the population of 10,276,780, males number 5,374,451 and females 5,092,245.

A Big Cargo

Lake Vessel Carries Enough Wheat To Bake 12,850,000 Loaves

An old salt sat on the bank of the new Welland Canal. Beside him sat the statistician. Talk veered uncertainly from one subject to another. Then it reached record cargoes. "And the statistician got busy."

When the "Lemoyne" opened the canal, she carried the world's greatest cargo of grain, he said. "She has already carried 571,885 bushels of wheat at one load, and that cargo would make 12,350,000 two-pound loaves of bread. If you laid those loaves end to end they would reach 2,350 miles for the distance from the spot where the wheat was produced to the sea. It would take 210 farms of 10 acres to grow the cargo and 286,000-ton railroad cars, or a train 2 1/2 miles long to carry it."

"Well," said the old salt, tapping his pipe reflectively against the snuffing post, "that's quite a load. I remember when the first steamboat—'Theerin'—pulled out of Port Arthur with her record cargo. It was 30,000 bushels."

Britain Perfects Super-Tanks

Much Stronger and More Efficient Than Old Type

Great Britain was the first nation to use "tanks" in warfare. Since then these instruments of destruction have been greatly improved so that England leads the world in such weapons. The latest tanks are covered with armour plate much stronger than before and capable of resisting even the new German super-bullet, which blasts its way through the armour of the old-type tanks. They have also perfected a more mobile light tank capable of negotiating ditches, streams, trenches and other gaps much wider than its predecessors could have negotiated.

What It Stood For

A tiny butcher shop recently opened in a Connecticut town, wedged into a small store-room, bears the impressive firm name of Williams & Gilchrist, Ltd. Asked what the Ltd. stood for, "Stands for 'limited'." Mr. Gilchrist said, "You see, we're limited to meats and nothing but meats."

"What is a paradox, Mister?"

Utilize White Whales

Hides May Be Used For Manufacture Of Fancy Leather Goods

The two white whales brought to Winnipeg from Hudson Bay by the Industrial Development Board of Manitoba have been rendered at the St. Boniface abattoirs and they provided 35 per cent. of their total weight in excellent quality oil, bearing a slight odor, and being only slightly stronger than olive oil. The board hopes to develop a new industry on the northern water body.

The hides are now in process of tanning which will take some time, but leather workers believe it will prove suitable for the manufacture of ladies' handbags, and other fancy leather goods. Minute study of the outer skin reveals a mottled effect with alternating patches of smooth and rough skin. Blubber almost two inches thick adheres to the hide, but comes off readily.

APPLEFORD WONDER PAPER
HAS GREAT VOGUE

Of all household tasks, that of dusting is the least appealing to the majority of women.

However, like many another connected with housework, is undergoing radical change. In a great many Canadian homes the women are discarding dust cloths entirely, and are using Appelford Wonder Paper instead, because it actually dusters—as it cleans—as it polishes, doing a better and much quicker job than the old dust cloth ever did.

This new, and extremely modern Wonder Paper, is made from clean rags, and soft paper pulp, treated in a scientific way with a high-grade furniture polish, and absorbs dirt instead of spreading it.

Appelford Wonder Paper comes in handy-size packages, twenty-five large sheets for twenty-five cents. You crumple a sheet into a soft wad and go over the surfaces requiring attention. Then when one side is soiled or worn, turn the Wonder Paper inside out. After you have given a quick and lasting finish to furniture and woodwork, you can still use Wonder Paper on the floors, if you wish.

And when you are through, there's no old dust to shake out or wash. Throw the used Wonder Paper away and you've completed the most tiresome part of housework in half the time and with half the effort.

Wonder Paper is made by the makers of the famous PARASANI Heavy Waxed Paper in the Green Box.

NEW DEEP WATER ROUTE FOR WESTERN WHEAT

Most fittingly, the vital new link in the Great Lakes' system, Canada's $128,000,000 new Welland Canal, was opened, officially, by sending the greatest grain-carrier afloat, S.S. Lemoyne of Canada Steamship Lines, through the eight locks to Kingston with the biggest cargo of western wheat moved

And then Jean found herself resting against the curve of Blaise's arm, with the room's powerful shoulders, firm and solid as a rock beneath her.

"All right?" queried Blaise, gathering up the reins in his left hand.

"Lean well back against my shoulder. There, how's that?"

"It's like an arm-chair."
He laughed.

"I am afraid you won't say the same by the end of the journey," he commented ruefully.

But by the end of the journey Jean was fast asleep. She had "leaned well back" as directed, conscious, as she felt the firm clasp of Blaise's arm, of a supreme sense of security and well-being. The reaction from the strain of the afternoon, the exhaustion consequent upon her flight through the mist and the fall which had so suddenly ended it, and the rhythmic beat of Orion's hoofs all combined to lull her into a state of delicious drowsiness. It was so good to feel that she need fight, and scheme, and plan no longer, to feel utterly safe . . . to know that Blaise was holding her. . . .

Her head fell back against his shoulder, her eyes closed, and the next thing of which she was conscious was of being lifted down by a pair of strong arms and of a confused murmur of voices from amongst which she hazily distinguished Lady Anne's heartfelt: "Thank God you've found her!" And then, characteristically practical, "I'll have her in bed in five minutes. Blankets and hot-water bottles are all in readiness."

It was the evening of the following day, Jean tucked up on a couch and with her strained ankle comfortably bandaged, had been reluctantly furnishing Blaise with the particulars of her experience at the bungalow. She had been very unwilling to confide the whole story to him, fearing the consequence of the Tormarin temper as applied to Burke. A violent quarrel between the two men could do good, she reflected, and would only be fraught with unpleasant results to all concerned—probably, in the end, securing a painful publicity for the whole affair.

Fortunately Blaise had been out when Judith had rung up earlier in the day to enquire if Jean had returned to Staple, or he might have fired off a few candid expressions of opinion through the telephone. But now there was no evading his searching questions, and he had quietly but determinedly insisted upon hearing the entire story. Once or twice an ejaculation of intense anger broke from him as he listened, but, beyond that he made little comment.

"And—that was all?" wound up Jean. "And anyway, Blaise—a little anxiously—it's over now, and I'm none the worse except for the acquisition of a little more worldly wisdom and a strained ankle."

"Yes, it's over now," he said, standing looking down at her with a curious gleam in his eyes. "But that sort of thing shan't happen twice. You'll have to marry me—do you hear?"—imperiously. "You shall never run such a risk again. We'll get married at once!"

And Jean with a quiver of amusement at the corners of her mouth, responded meekly:

"Yes, Blaise."

The next minute his arms were around her and their lips met in the first supreme kiss of love at last acknowledged—of love given and returned.

There is no gauge by which those first moments when two who love confess that they are lovers may be measured. It is the golden, timeless span when "unborn tomorrow and dead yesterday" cease to hem us round about and only love, and love's ecstasy, remain.

To Blaise and Jean it might have been an hour—a commonplace period ticked off by the little silver clock upon the chimney-piece—or half eternity before they came back to the recollection of things mundane. When they did, it was across the kindly bridge of humour.

Blaise laughed out suddenly and joyfully.

"It's preposterous," he exclaimed.

"I quite forgot to propose."

"So you did! Suppose"—smiling up at him imperpertently—"suppose you do it now?"

"Not if I won't waste my breath when I might put it to so much better use in calling you beloved."

Jean was silent, but her eyes answered him. She had made room for him beside her, and now he was seated upon the edge of the Chesterfield, holding her in his arms. She did not want to talk much. That still, serene happiness which lies deep within the heart is not provocative of garrulity.

At last a question—the question that had tormented her through all her long months since she had first realized whether love was leading her, found its way to her lips.

"Why didn't you tell me before, Blaise?"

"His face clouded.

"Because of all that had happened in the past. You know—you have been told about Nesta—"

"Ah, yes! Don't talk about it, Blaise," she broke in hastily, sensing his distasteful recoil from the topic.

"I think we must a little, done," he responded gravely. "You see, Nesta was not all to blame—nor even very much, as I'm sure"—with a little half-tender smile—"my mother tried hard to make you believe."

Jean nodded vigorously.

"She did. And I expect she was perfectly right."

He shook his head.

"No," he answered. "The fault was really mine. My initial mistake was in confusing the false fire with the true. It was not love I had for Nesta. And I found it out when it was too late. We were poles apart in everything, and instead of trying to make it easier for her, trying to understand her and to lead her into our ways of looking at things, I only stormed at her. It roused all that was worst in me to see her trailing our name in the dust, throwing her dignity to the winds, craving for nothing other than amusement and excitement. I'm not trying to excuse myself. There was no excuse for me. In my way, I was as culpable and foolish as she. And when the crash came—when I found her deliberately entertaining in my house against my express orders, a man who ought to have been kicked out of any decent society, why, I let go. The Tormarin temper had its way with me. I shall never forgive myself for that. I frightened her, terrified her. I think I must have been half mad. And then well, you know what followed. She rushed away and, before anyone could find her or help her, she had killed herself—thrown herself into the Seine. Quite what happened between leaving her and her death we were never able to find out. Apparently since her marriage with me, her sister had gone to Paris, unknown to her, and had taken a situation as "dame de compagnie" to some Frenchwoman, and Nesta, though she followed from Italy to Paris, failed to find her there. At least that is what Margherita Valdi told me in the letter announcing Nesta's death. Then she must have lost heart. So you see, morally I am responsible for that poor, reckless child's death."

"Oh, no, no, Blaise! I don't see that"—pitifully.

"Don't you? I do—very clearly. And that was why, when I found myself caring for you, I tried to keep away."

He felt in his pocket and produced a plain gold wedding-ring. On the inside were engraved the initials "B. T. and N. F.," and a date.

"That was my talisman. Margherita sent it back to me when she wrote telling me of Nesta's death. When ever I felt my resolution weakening, I used to take it out and have a look at it. It was always quite effective in thrusting me back into my proper place in the scheme of things—that is, outside any other woman's life."

There was an inexpressible bitterness in his tones, and Jean drew a little nearer to him, her heart overflowing with compassion.

He looked down at her and smiled a thought ironically. But now—your best friend, I used to take it out and have a look at it. It was always quite effective in thrusting me back into my proper place in the scheme of things—that is, outside any other woman's life."

His lips brushed her hair. "I knew, that day at Montevau, what you might come to mean to me. And I intended never to see you again, but just to take that one day for remembrance. I felt that, having made such an utter hash of things, having spoiled one woman's life and been, indirectly, the cause of her death, I was not fit to hold another woman's happiness in my hands."

Jean rubbed her cheek against his forehead.

"I'm glad you thought better of it," she observed.

"I don't know, even now that I'm right in letting you love me."

"You can't stop me," she objected. He smiled.

"I don't think I would if I could—now."

Jean leaned up and, with a slender, dictatorial finger of the side of his face, turned his head towards her.

"Quite sure?" she demanded saucily. Then, without waiting for his answer: "Blaise, I do love your chin—it's such a nice, square, your-money-or-your-life sort of chin."

Something light as a butterfly, warm as a woman's lips, just brushed the feature in question.

He drew her into his arms, folding them closely about her.

"And I—I love every bit of you," he said hoarsely. "Body and soul! I love you! Oh! Heart's beloved! Nothing—no one in the whole world shall come between us two ever again!"

CHAPTER XXX.

The Gateway

August seemed determined to justify her claim to be numbered amongst the summer months before making her exit. Apparently she had repented her of having recently velled the country in a mist that might have been regarded as a very creditable effort even on the part of November, for today the sun was blazing down out of a cloudless sky and scarcely a breath of wind awayed the nodding cornstalks, heavy with golden grain.

Jean, her strained ankle now practically recovered, was tramping along the narrow footpath through the cornfield, following in Blaise's footsteps, while Nick brought up the rear of the procession. She had not seen Claire since her engagement had become an actual fact, though a characteristically warm-hearted little note from the latter had found its way to Staple, and this morning Jean had declared her inability to exist another day without a "heart-to-heart" talk with Claire."

Hence the afternoon's pilgrimage across the cornfield which formed part of a short cut between Staple and Charnwood.

At first Jean had feared lest her new-found happiness might raise a barrier of mists betwixt herself and Claire. The contrast between the respective hands that Fate had dealt them was so glaring, and the rose and gold with which love had suddenly decked Jean's own life seemed to make the bleak tragedy which enveloped Claire's appear even darker than before.

But Claire's letter, full of a quiet, unselfish rejoicing in the happiness which had fallen to the lot of her friend, had somehow smoothed away the little uncomfortable feeling of comparison which, to anyone as sensitive as Jean, had been a very real embarrassment. Nick's felicitations, too, had been tendered with frank cordiality and affection, and with a delicate perception that had successfully concealed the sting of individual pain which the contrast could hardly failed to have induced.

So it was with a considerably lightened heart that Jean, with her escort of two, passed between the gates of Charnwood and, avoiding the lengthy walk entailed by following the windings of the drive, struck off across the velvet lawns—smooth stretches of close-cropped sward which, broken only by branching trees and shrubbery, and underlaid by the dreadful formality of symmetrical flower-beds, swept right up to the gravelled terrace fronting the windows of the house itself.

The two men loitered to discuss the points of a couple of young sparrows roosting together on the grass, but Jean, eager to see Claire, smilingly declined to wait for them, and, speeding on ahead, she mounted the short flight of steps leading to the terrace from the lower level of the lawns.

Things Not Needed

Rt. Hon. Stanley Bruce would exclude from the Empire "certain foreign products." An exchange suggests that the list include German measles, Chinese puzzles, Russian Reds, Spanish flu, French leave and Dutch treats.
